One Child International's 101 Lecture Series (1C 101)

October 15, 2012: One Child International is pleased to announce the launch of a new lecture program titled 'One Child 101.' The first lecture was delivered at the invitation of Keiser University, at their Miami campus at the beginning of October 2012.

What is the 101 program?

The 101 program is a lecture series that provides basic, core, information about child abuse, violence against children, child protection and domestic violence. The program assumes no prior knowledge on the topic.

Why the basics?

Since 2006 One Child International has been providing information about child abuse prevention to a wide audience of medical professionals, law enforcement, government officials, the judiciary and the public.

A lesson we have repeatedly learned is that the level of knowledge of the audience is much lower than might be expected. Why? As was confirmed by audience members, many were never taught the basics. Our program makes up that gap effectively by providing this knowledge in a clear, concise and readily understandable lecture format.

Lecture duration

Each runs 2 to 4 hours, depending on the size and needs of the audience. Lectures are tailored to the audience - student, professional, or public.

Format

In addition to the lecture, audience interaction is encouraged in the form of questions and discussion at the end of each section. Audience members are encouraged to bring questions with them so that they can be addressed.

One Child 101 topics include:

1. Child abuse - violence against children - the four types of child abuse - protecting children from sexual abuse
2. Domestic Violence - Violence against Women
3. Commercial Exploitation of Children
